The Crystalline Journey of the Soul

Geraldine Sherborne

This is a very critical point in your evolution, break point, were the energy from different directions meets to form a new and stronger vibratory force to carry the impetus Earth has reached in her transformation through to a conclusion of grand proportions.

She waits for no one. At this stage her kindnesses are running low, as she feels this great chance to completely transform, moving into a completely different energy field from Chrysalis into a Crystalline body of pure Light magnificence.

There is still a while to feel this transformation, the throes of it are speeding up every area of evolution in all species. Nothing will be left un-tuned, or unturned by this momentous overturning of life as you see and experience it in its present form.

You all came to experience the Harmonic Convergence of Souls and matter, enjoy it, let go of any fear, otherwise you may be drawn down into a negative vibration instead of soaring into the heights of Earth's moment supreme.

If you can see the broader picture of this Grandiose Adventure you can marvel at its complexity and its Divine timing. You will also see the overall pattern like a vast moving mandala, an overview of what has been to become what now is.

Rejoice in your presence on the Earth at this time. To be here now experiencing these fiery overtones of transition, rise above your own personal fears to see the greater picture as it stands today.

You have all brought this about with the many incarnations for thousands of years. The energy you brought to these lives has generated the energy Earth needed to finally culminate in this Holy exercise of total transformation.

Was it worth it? Well, you will still need a small waiting time for the joyful experience of knowing!

All is well and as it Should Be .

With my deep admiration and love for your total adherence to the Quest.
